YEARBOOK

2009

In the early 1990's, Frank Calvin met with then-Superintendent Louis Cardamone to discuss the possibility of creating a hall of fame to honor outstanding graduates of Warren High School, Warren G. Harding High School and Warren Western Reserve High School. Agreeing on the need and the desire to form such a group, these two men and a committee of prominent citizens and school representatives began to investigate similar organizations within the state. On May 15, 1993, their dream was realized, as ten graduates became the charter members of the Warren High Schools' Distinguished Alumni Hall of Fame. The Induction Class of 1993 included Wilson Binger, Charles Foley Sr., Eli Goldston, Myron Lotz, Robert Nader, Irene Oliver, Ronald Parise, Jeffrey Taft, Janis Hopkins Trachtman and Michael Verich. Miss Augusta Barrick, long-time Harding speech and English teacher and member of the original committee, was given honorary membership. Since then, seven to ten new members have been inducted each year. Plaques showing a personal sketch and giving a brief list of accomplishments of each inductee are displayed in the halls of Harding High School.

The Alumni Hall of Fame honors the valedictorian and salutatorian of the Warren G. Harding senior class with a scholarship. The top two juniors and sophomores are given a financial reward in recognition of their academic achievement. In 2008, the Hall of Fame expanded its scholarship program to deserving seniors, awarding the Sue Kindelberger Scholarship, the Student of Promise Scholarship, and the D. James Economos Scholarship. At the 2008 Hall of Fame induction ceremony, the Warren City Schools Foundation awarded the first Barbara Ann Zoba and Eleanor Candea-Faruga Scholarships. In 2009, through the initiative of Alumni Hall of Fame member Charles R. Cole, the Hall of Fame established the "Warren Alumni Scholarship Fund." This fund will provide scholarships to deserving Warren G. Harding High School Seniors.

Throughout their history, Warren City Schools have graduated men and women who have become leaders in every segment of society and in such world-wide locations as Canada, India and Belgium. With so many success stories already recognized and many more yet to be honored, it is no wonder that the Warren City Schools are seen as a source of pride, leadership and excellence.
